AULTMAN COLLEGE plans to continue accepting applications until August 1 and waiving its application fees. It intends to offer the Accuplacer test remotely and will offer alternatives if the summer ACT dates are canceled.

KENT STATE UNIVERSITY (including the Stark campus) is waiving its standardized testing requirements and planning to utilize a more holistic approach to determine student admission for the fall 2020 and fall 2021 semesters. The university also will accept unofficial transcripts from high school counselors, waive application fees and is moving its application deadline from May 1 to June 1.

MALONE UNIVERSITY is extending its candidate reply date to June 1 and allowing students to pay a reduced deposit until May 1. The university also is waiving its requirement for applications to include an ACT or SAT score. It is encouraging students whose family income has been impacted by the coronavirus to work with their admissions officer to repackage their financial aid through its special circumstance’s protocols.

STARK STATE COLLEGE is allowing students to apply for summer and fall classes even if they do not have ACT or Accuplacer test results. College officials instead will use multiple measures in assessing a student's transcripts to determine course placement. Once testing becomes available again, students can, without penalty, change their course placements if needed, the college said. Students still can apply and enroll up to the start of the semester and still will not pay an application fee. Students enrolling for selective programs, such as its health programs, are encouraged to check the college's website. The practical nursing program has changed its deadline from May 15 to June 15.

The UNIVERSITY OF AKRON has extended its confirmation deadline for admitted students to June 1 and is not requiring an SAT or ACT test score for fall 2020. It also is waiving its application fees. Students who apply by June 1 will be automatically considered for the Akron Guarantee Scholarship and the Underrepresented Student Scholarship. The university's deadline for applications remains Aug. 1.

The UNIVERSITY OF MOUNT UNION has waived its requirement for an ACT or SAT score but still is encouraging students who have ACT or SAT scores to continue to submit them to help Mount Union identify their first-year courses. The university has a rolling admission deadline.

WALSH UNIVERSITY will continue accepting applications into August, allowing students to submit an application without standardized test scores and working with students who face financial hardship, including offering payment plans for tuition deposits. It has moved its deposit refund date and its competitive academic scholarship deadlines to June 1.
